What is HAVS?

HAVS (Hand and Vibration Syndrome) is caused by occupational exposure to vibrating hand tools. The primary risk factor for HAVS is a cumulative exposure of hours to intense vibration from tools such as chainsaws, impact tools, grinders, and breakers.

HAVS has three main components:

1. Peripheral neuropathy of the hands that produces numbness, tingling, or both in a glove distribution. Loss of dexterity may occur.
2. Secondary Raynaud's phenomenon of the hands, sometimes referred to as vibration white finger (VWF).
3. Musculoskeletal problems. These are the least specific manifestations and may include complaints of weakness, discomfort, and pain of the hands, wrists, forearms, and elbows.

Don't monitor HAVS exposure in your company?

Failing to test your equipment within your company is a criminal and civil offence.
Average HAVS claims in 2021 mounted to £600,000 per worker.

What can you do to protect your company?

Test- Have your equipment tested regularly.

Consult- Work with a consultant to put in place a plan to limit exposure.

Monitor- Track and monitor all employees and vibrating equipment within your company.
